SATURDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1919.

STAND BY THE PRESIDENT.

In the course of an able article in the Anderson, Ind., Daily Bulletin, Dixon C. Williams, the well known Chicago manufacturer and Democratic leader, says:

The position of the Democratic party and its management should be one of complete accord with the president producing an activity which will count in calling the entire country to his support. Upon the president's success depends, in my judgment, the hope for happiness, the very safety of the lives and property of the common people of America, as well as of the world.

Let the few disgruntled Democratic and the many Republican partisan senators and congressmen continue their nefarious and shameful tactics, proving daily the president's assertion that the Republican leaders in Congress would do their utmost to embarrass him. Let the Republican chairman continue his indecent insults and unpatriotic conduct toward the president—the people will settle with them soon—for ninety per cent of our citizens are with him; but, in the meantime, the authorities in the president's own official, political organization should wake up, fight all the harder for the common good and forget, if you please, that Republicans have been sometimes seemingly preferred and made prominent, while Democrats who would have served better were left out of places of power and importance in governmental positions and ignored in State Councils of Defense appointments, where, as a result, treachery to the president and his policies has been the gleeful rule.

The world is "still on fire," the conflagration may any moment reach over into our blessed country and begin its work of devastation and mighty destruction. That party or that organization which will unselfishly work to stem the rush of the "red terror" will need no other reward.

Start and continue a propaganda among the rich, the employer class, to impress them with their true relation to their employees. Do likewise among the trouble makers, the imported firebrands, meeting their arguments with others of reason and common sense. This country's danger now lies in the backwash from the war, and failure to appreciate the seriousness and extent of our social unrest.

The administration is exerting its utmost to counteract that influence. A better understanding is being had between employer and employee. Labor conditions are steadily improving. Many large employers of labor see conditions and are inaugurating improvements in dealing with their helpers, which is bound to tell for the common good in a wonderful way.

Boost the administration! You have nothing to apologize for in its record; in every performance your pride is justifiable. Boost our country! Of all countries the greatest and best! Boost business! Business is not bad except comparatively. It is improving steadily despite certain politicians who secretly hope for a depression on the eve of the next national election because "they are out and want to get in." The glut in the labor market is more apparent than real. Our country is in for a period of business prosperity such as it has never known. The tactics of politicians can only retard it.

In the meantime, let the Democratic party arise to its wonderful opportunities, keep the interests of the people and country before political party advantage and the people will gratefully care for the party. Don't be a waster! The development of the constructive faculty is much more noble than the destructive. See to it that the Democratic party continues to be the greatest constructive force in the world.

EMANUEL WEIL BACK

Well Known Life Insurance Man
Returns from California Trip.

Emanuel Weil of the New York Life Insurance Company has just returned from a trip to the 200,000 Club convention which was held at Del Monte, California, from September 16 to September 20. During his absence from Chicago Mr. Weil also made extensive visits to points in California, New Mexico, Colorado and several Western states. Mr. Weil's itinerary included trips to the Garden of Eden, the Garden of the Gods, and all of the sunshine flowers and fruit of California. If anyone desires to visit God's country, all they have to do, he says is to duplicate his trip.

OBITUARY

CHRISTOPHER C. HAWKINS.

The funeral of the late Christopher C. Hawkins took place on Monday from the family residence, 4858 Forestville avenue. It was held under the auspices of Olympia Lodge, 864, A. F. & A. M., and the burial was in Mount Hope Cemetery.

Mr. Hawkins was highly respected not only in Chicago but in Terre Haute, Indiana, being well known in both cities. Besides his devoted wife he leaves behind him five children: William O. Hawkins, Forest D. Hawkins, Howard G. Hawkins, Fern Devere Hawkins and Mrs. Iva M. White.

MRS. THOMAS H. GLASSBROOK.

Chicago lost an old and respected resident when Mrs. Thomas H. Glassbrook died on Tuesday at the North Shore Hospital, where she had undergone an operation. The deceased lady, who was noted for her charities; for her kind and amiable disposition, and her devotion to her family, was a Chicagoan for nearly 60 years. She was the widow of Thomas H. Glassbrook, for many years assistant county treasurer and one of the men who helped make this city great. Mrs. Glassbrook was the mother of Mrs. C. S. O'Leary and Mrs. Richard J. Finn, who have the sympathy of their many friends. The funeral occurred on Thursday from the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Richard J. Finn, 6708 Newgard avenue. After Requiem High Mass at St. Jerome's church, the remains were interred in the family lot in Calvary cemetery.

LIBERTY LOAN BOOKLET

Information About Campaigns
Furnished by Chicago Trust Company.

A booklet containing much illuminating information about the various liberty loan campaigns has been issued by the bond department of the Chicago Trust company, and is being distributed among its friends and patrons. It is intended to give such information pertaining to liberty bonds as will be desired by the holders of these securities.

The booklet contains tables showing the amount of issue, amount subscribed, amount allotted and number of subscribers to each of the five loans; a synopsis of the president's "fourteen points"; five chapters of liberty loan information, each chapter dealing in detail with the features of the loan it describes; a chronology of the war's chief events, and other items touching on the war.

FIRE DEPARTMENT TOP HEAVY

The mayor and city council are going to lop off useless jobs in the fire department when they:

1. Abolish the fire prevention bureau, which is said to duplicate the work of the building commissioner's office.
2. Abolish the positions of the six assistant fire marshals, one of whom draws a salary of $5,000 a year and the others $4,000 a year each.
3. Cut in two the number of battalion chiefs, of whom there are thirty-three drawing $3,300 a year.
4. Abolish one of the two staffs of officers which at present administer fire department stations where there is both an engine and a truck, or where there are two engines.

Lieutenant James F. Walsh of the North Halsted street police station is one of the best officials on the force. Respected by his men, by his superiors and by the public, he has made a fine record.

One of the brightest and most successful real estate men in Chicago is John M. Murphy of the famous Britannic organization.

PEOPLE TALKED ABOUT

GOVERNORS FAVOR BUDGET SYSTEM

Gov. Henry J. Allen of Kansas says of the movement to establish a national budget system: "The war emphasized strongly the inadequacies of our legislative machinery in problems of national finance. No private business concern would dare to rush blindly into things as does congress. This is because congress lacks a sound system of providing public money for the operation of the ten major executive departments. The work of these agencies can be established only through the adoption of a new method of budgetary procedure."

Governor Allen is one of 22 governors who are reported by the national budget committee to favor the substitution of the budget system for the present system of departmental estimates. The governors made many remedial suggestions, including the following:

Demand executive responsibility for the national budget. Establish a bureau of the budget to draw up estimates of governmental expenses. Provide for congressional consideration of money bills by single committees of the house and senate, or a joint committee of the two. Limit money bills to actual needs and do away with "pork" and "log rolling."

JAMES R. RIGGS A BORN FARMER

The new assistant secretary of agriculture, James R. Riggs, is a farmer—not merely by way of interest in the subject, but by life-long, practical application. Farming has been his primary occupation all his life. More than that, he is a farmer by heredity. His grandfather, Ezekiah Riggs, was born on a farm in Loudon county, Virginia, in 1791. When he was twenty-two years old he moved to Sullivan county, Indiana, and engaged in farming and live stock growing. There Commodore Perry Riggs, father of the assistant secretary, was born and there he spent his life as a farmer and stock grower. All of his sons and all of his sons' sons have been farmers.

James R. Riggs was born at Shelburn, Ind., February 17, 1895. For two years after graduation from the Sullivan county high school, in 1882, he was deputy county treasurer and bookkeeper for a hardware and lumber firm. In 1885, when he was twenty years old, he began his career as a farmer. He made his first purchase of land in 1888. From that time until the present he has continued in the active management of his farms.

WHEN JOSEPHUS FIRST TASTED POI

Secretary Josephus Daniels of the navy is a capable spotlight artist, and he was conspicuously in the public eye during his recent visit to the Pacific coast in connection with the arrival of the fleet. They do say that the official motion pictures of the secretary eating poi at Honolulu are great. Such delicacies as pig, roasted whole in the ground, with the aid of hot rocks; poi from the merrily root of the taro plant; seaweed and raw fish; pudding made from taro, coconut and coconut milk; beef and taro tops cooked in ti leaves; sweet potatoes roasted in a hole in the sand, and many other viands dear to the palate of the native Hawaiian, were served at an old-fashioned luan, or feast, in his honor. The guests were compelled to eat with their fingers. Napkins were provided, however.

Secretary Daniels did not hesitate. He plunged two fingers into a poi bowl, twirled a sticky lump on their ends and conveyed it to his mouth. He did not wince, as most "maihinis" or newcomers do when they taste poi for the first time. Secretary Daniels was game.

HENDERSON, BRITISH LABOR LEADER

The result of the by-election of Widnes, Lancaster, in which Arthur Henderson, the labor leader, was elected to the house of commons, is considered a severe blow to the coalition government. Henderson said his victory was "an emphatic condemnation of the coalition government's policy and of the cynical political compromise upon which the government rests." Henderson's recent expressions of his views include these:

"The present world unrest means that the old order of things is in its death throes, that a new society is about to come to its birth and that age-long injustices and inequalities that burdened the lives of the common people are to be swept away. Class rule in politics is doomed, but it is still doubtful whether the ideal of true political liberty will be realized in this or other countries without a violent convulsion of society. The main problem now is to restore popular confidence in representative institutions and to guide the movement of the masses along the path of constitutional changes, and to enable democracy to become master in its own house without violence."

ZITA SAYS AUSTRIA WAS "HELL"

Dr. Karl Renner has signed the treaty between the allied and associated powers and the Austrian republic. And this was the end of the house of Hapsburg. Nevertheless dignitaries of the former Austrian regime are constantly renewing their requests that former Emperor Charles attempt an active part in Austrian affairs.

At one of the recent conferences the former Empress Zita was present. She was Princess Zita of Bourbon and Parma. She has spent the greatest part of her life in the convent in which she was educated. She is said to know very little about the great world. Still she apparently has learned something. After the last conference had lasted for three hours she said:

"I have had enough talking, gentlemen. The Hofburg was hell for us. We have done our duty to the end and we have suffered enough. To return is an impossibility."

It is not told what reply Charles and the dignitaries made to this emphatic declaration. Doubtless she stated the exact fact concerning her life in the Hofburg.

"I am absolutely out of politics. I am not concerned in and I will not handle anybody's campaign for anything. I never will be a candidate for any political office. I will make no political speeches for anybody or anything."

"That's what I want to say, and you can't make it too strong to suit me," was the statement of Brig. Gen. Charles Gates Dawes, who is back in Chicago.

General Dawes, of the Central Trust company, said that his sole purpose in life is to catch up with the business affairs that he dropped when he started for France with the army in 1917. He said that he wants to be left alone by the politicians, and he intends to do the same by them.

Laurence E. Adams, the popular manager of the Brevoort Hotel, has every reason to be proud of his great restaurant. It is praised by everybody who has patronized it.

Otto Rice, the popular secretary and manager of the Quick Service Laundry Company, would make a splendid West Park commissioner. He is public spirited and popular, and has the good wishes of his fellow citizens.

The Oliver typewriter is praised by all who have used it.

John T. Driscoll has done much towards the upbuilding of Chicago and especially of the great West Side. An extensive property owner himself, he has always been foremost in every movement tending to further the interests of the city or of his fellow citizens. No man is more respected and no man asks for less.

Frank A. Johnson, general sales manager of the Grennan Cake Corporation, is one of the most popular and wideawake young men in Chicago. He is very popular in political circles and many predict a big public career for him.
